Cong holds massive dharna in Delhi for 42 pc BC reservations; CM Reddy challenges PM Modi

New Delhi/Hyderabad, Aug 6 (UNI) :The Congress party staged a massive dharna at Jantar Mantar in New Delhi on Wednesday, demanding the immediate approval of the bills granting 42 percent reservation for Backward Classes (BCs) in local body elections, education, and employment in Telangana.

The protest was spearheaded by Chief Minister A Revanth Reddy, joined by Deputy CM Bhatti Vikramarka, PCC President Mukesh Kumar Goud, several ministers, MLAs, MLCs, corporation chairpersons, DCC presidents, and BC association leaders.

Addressing the gathering, CM Revanth Reddy issued a direct challenge to Prime Minister Narendra Modi and the NDA government. He accused the Centre of blocking the bills and delaying justice to the weaker sections of society.

“Our government has passed the bills and sent them to the Centre, but Modi and the BJP are obstructing them. This dharna is not for politics but to secure 42 percent BC reservation. If Modi does not heed our demand, we will fight politically and ensure Rahul Gandhi becomes the Prime Minister,” Revanth Reddy said.

The Chief Minister lambasted both the BJP and BRS, accusing them of betraying BC communities. He alleged that BRS leaders avoided the dharna to maintain their political proximity to the BJP. He further declared that the Telangana model of 42 per cent BC reservation would create a political wave across the country and become a key agenda in the 2029 general elections.

Deputy Chief Minister Bhatti Vikramarka Mallu, AICC in-charge Meenakshi Natarajan, TPCC President Mahesh Kumar Goud, Ministers Seethakka and Komati Reddy Venkat Reddy, MLC Vijaya Shanti, and other Congress leaders delivered fiery speeches.

They accused the BJP of double standards—supporting BC reservation bills in the state Assembly but blocking them at the Centre—and of using the “Muslim card” to divert attention from backward class issues.

Support also came from other leaders including DMK MP Kanimozhi, who cited Tamil Nadu's 69 percent reservation model and demanded an urgent revision of the national reservation limit, pledging full support to Telangana's fight.

Taking to X (formerly Twitter), Congress leader Rahul Gandhi said: “The Telangana Government and Congress sat on a dharna in Delhi today, demanding that the President assent to the law reserving 42 pc for backward classes in education, employment and local government.

This law is a major advance towards the Constitution's vision of social justice, grounded in data from the caste census.

I am grateful to INDIA leaders who voiced their support, and hope the President will take note and assent.

This fight is not just for Telangana. It is a collective fight to ensure that Indians from marginalized communities have their rightful share in power and progress.”

The Congress leaders vowed to continue their agitation in Delhi until the 42 per cent BC reservation bills are approved, framing the protest as a fight for rights, not political optics.

PM dedicates Kartavya Bhawan to Nation, calls it a symbol of public service

New Delhi, Aug 6 (UNI) : Prime Minister Narendra Modi today dedicated the newly constructed state-of-the-art, Kartavya Bhawan to the nation at the Kartavya Path, describing it as a strong symbol of the Government's unwavering resolve and continuous efforts towards public service. Describing it as "a milestone in India's journey towards becoming a developed nation," he said “Kartavya Bhavan, on the path of duty, is a symbol of our unwavering commitment and continuous efforts toward serving every individual. It will not only help in swiftly delivering our policies and schemes to the people but will also provide a new momentum to the country's development.”

"I am deeply proud to dedicate this building, an example of state-of-the-art infrastructure, to the nation,” he said, addressing the nation. Earlier in the morning, he inaugurated the seven-storeyed building which is part of the Government's much ambitious Central Vista Project.

The Prime Minister said the newly inaugurated structure was not just another government building, but a symbol of India's transformation, where policies for a "Viksit Bharat" (Developed India) will be shaped. “It (Kartavya Bhawan) would facilitate faster implementation of policies and schemes, while also giving fresh momentum to the country's overall development,” he added.

Referring to the Bhagavad Gita, Modi invoked the concept of “Kartavya” (duty) to stress the moral and administrative purpose of the new complex. “The government's aim is not merely to build infrastructure, but to create spaces where responsibility and nation-building take center stage.”

“Kartavya Bhavan reflects our commitment to building a developed and self-reliant India. Today, the nation has witnessed the tireless hard work and determination of our laboring brothers who have shaped it. I am extremely delighted to interact with them.”

The Prime Minister emphasised the profound symbolic importance of inaugurating the new building in August, referring to it as “the month of revolution.” Speaking just days ahead of Independence Day, he remarked, “This is one major mark before August 15,” underscoring the seamless continuity between India's ongoing developmental strides and the enduring spirit of national freedom.

Stressing that such a state-of-the-art infrastructure was need of the hour, the PM also pointed out the shortcomings of existing office buildings, which he said, lacked adequate space, lighting and ventilation.

“The new Kartavya Bhavan structures will bring all central ministries and offices closer together, resulting in annual savings of around Rs 1,500 crore.”

Rahul Gandhi gets conditional bail by Chaibasa court in defamation case

Ranchi, Aug 6 (UNI) : Congress leader and Leader of Opposition in the Lok Sabha, Rahul Gandhi, has been granted conditional bail today by the MP-MLA Special Court in Chaibasa in connection with the defamation case filed against him by a BJP leader.

Gandhi appeared before Judge Supriya Rani Tigga at 11 am, complying with an earlier directive of the Jharkhand High Court, which had temporarily stayed a non-bailable warrant issued against him. The court granted him bail on the condition that he would extend full cooperation with the trial proceedings.

The case pertains to alleged defamatory remarks made by the leader during a Congress convention on March 28, 2018, where Gandhi had reportedly targeted BJP leaders. A complaint was filed by BJP functionary Pratap Kumar in the Chaibasa court, initiating the legal process.

Following jurisdictional transfers between the Chaibasa court and the Ranchi MP-MLA court, and Gandhi's repeated non-appearance despite summons, the Chaibasa court first issued a bailable warrant, followed by a nonbailable one. His plea for exemption was initially rejected by the lower court.

On June 10, the Jharkhand High Court stayed the NBW and allowed Gandhi time until August 6 to appear. His counsel Dipankar had argued that Gandhi was unable to attend the hearing on the previously scheduled date of June 26.

As the case involves only bailable sections, legal experts had anticipated that bail would be granted. The trial will now proceed with the court directing Gandhi to remain cooperative throughout the legal proceedings.

PM Modi expected to visit China for SCO Summit, in another thaw in bilateral ties

New Delhi, Aug 6 (UNI) : Prime Minister Narendra Modi is expected to visit China to attend the upcoming Shanghai Cooperation Organisation (SCO) Summit, to be held in Tianjin, from August 31 to September 1.

PM Modi's visit to China to attend the 25th Heads of State Council meeting of the SCO, would mark another step towards the normalization of ties between the two nations since the two sides agreed on disengagement between their troops along the boundary following the Kazan meeting in October 2024.

PM Modi had last visited China in 2019. However, his meeting with President Xi Jinping in Kazan, on the sidelines of the 16th BRICS Summit in October last year, had marked the first major step in the thawing of ties, which had soured majorly following the 2020 bloody Galwan border clash.

Last month, External Affairs Minister S Jaishankar had held talks with Chinese Foreign Minister Wang Yi on the sidelines of a SCO Foreign Ministers' Meeting. During their talks in Beijing, Wang Yi had noted that China-India relations have sustained a momentum of improvement and development, which has not come easily and should be cherished with great care. PM Modi's visit to China also comes as the two countries mark the 75th anniversary of the establishment of diplomatic relations between them.

China is hosting the summit for the fifth time.

The theme for China's 2025 SCO presidency is "Upholding the Shanghai Spirit: SCO on the Move".

PM Modi is also expected to visit Japan for the annual summit talks.

"To give impetus to financial inclusion initiatives of the government, PMJDY was extended beyond August 14, 2018, by making the scheme more attractive," Sitharaman added. BJP demands CBI probe into Kaleshwaram project

Hyderabad, Aug 6 (UNI) : Telangana BJP President N Ramchander Rao on Wednesday demanded a CBI inquiry into the alleged corruption in the Kaleshwaram project and advocated the construction of a new irrigation project at Tummadihatti to meet the water needs of the region.

Addressing the media at Sirpur Kagaznagar in Komaram Bheem Asifabad district, Rao said there is a strong demand for irrigation water in the region after the realignment of the Pranahita-Chevella project.He suggested that a separate project at the confluence of the Wardha and Wainganga rivers near Tummadihatti could irrigate about 2.5 lakh acres and resolve water scarcity for farmers.

He urged the state government to prepare and submit a Detailed Project Report (DPR) to the Centre for approval, noting that the Union Government provides assistance once the DPR is submitted.

Rao alleged that while the BJP never opposed irrigation projects benefiting farmers, it opposed the corruption and poor-quality construction in Kaleshwaram, accusing the former Chief Minister K Chandrasekhar Rao (CKCR) family of using the project as an “ATM” and misusing public funds.He blamed the previous BRS government for the damage to Medigadda barrage and cracks in other reservoirs, citing a National Dam Safety Authority report that confirmed design flaws and quality defects.

He further criticised the Congress government for arresting only a few officials linked to the project, questioning why politicians and contractors were spared and suggesting possible collusion between Congress and BRS.Rao reiterated the BJP’s demand for a CBI probe, pointing out that the Justice P C Ghosh Commission appointed by the state government revealed only partial facts.Taking aim at Chief Minister A Revanth Reddy, the BJP leader said he had visited Delhi 50 times since assuming office, “leaving administration in the lurch” and doing little for farmers or the public. He alleged that Congress and BRS are two sides of the same coin, while public sentiment is now leaning toward a double-engine BJP government in Telangana.

On “Operation Akarsh,” Rao said that leaders are voluntarily joining the BJP, convinced that the party is the only viable alternative in the state.

Ramchandra Rao highlights central schemes and development Plans

Komaram Bheem Asifabad, Aug 6 (UNI) BJP Telangana State President N. Ramchandra Rao on Wednesday interacted with prominent lawyers, doctors, intellectuals and party workers in Komaram Bheem Asifabad district, outlining the development initiatives undertaken by the Central government and promising further support for the region’s growth.

Speaking at the meeting, Ramchandra Rao said Komaram Bheem Asifabad is a district with historical significance and has witnessed major changes under the Narendra Modi government. He recalled that, as an MLC, he had demanded construction of new court buildings and allocation of Rs 100 crore for lawyers’ welfare funds, but alleged that the previous KCR-led government did not prioritize such measures.

He highlighted that the Centre, under Union Minister Nitin Gadkari, has launched national highway projects worth Rs 3,900 crore in the district, boosting trade, connectivity, and reducing travel time. He added that similar extensive road construction had only taken place during the Atal Bihari Vajpayee government, while it was stalled under Congress.

Rao stressed the need for a new irrigation project at Thummadihatti to meet farmers’ water needs and urged the state overnment to submit the DPR to the Centre, which he said is ready to extend full support. He also responded to local demands for an airport, stating that the Centre would sanction it if the state provides land.

Highlighting Central government initiatives, he noted that the Modi administration reopened the Ramagundam Fertilizer Factory, launched IITs and AIIMS, and distributed gas connections under the Ujjwala Yojana. He said free rice distribution, rural housing, toilets, bank loans for women, and Rs 6,000 annual support to farmers under PM-Kisan were all examples of the Centre’s commitment to the poor and rural population.He criticized the state government for not implementing schemes like Ayushman Bharat, alleging that it was avoiding Prime Minister Narendra Modi’s branding on welfare benefits out of political rivalry. “The Congress government keeps blaming lack of funds, while the Centre has already provided nearly ?12 lakh crore to Telangana in the last 11 years and continues to support rural and urban development,” he said.

Ramchandra Rao reiterated that a double engine government in Telangana would accelerate development and ensure that Central benefits reach all sections, including SCs, STs, BCs, farmers, youth, and women.

Congress leader Rahul Gandhi leaves after appearing before an MP-MLA Court in connection with a case related to alleged defamatory remarks against Union Home Minister Amit Shah at a rally in 2018, at Chaibasa in West Singhbhum district, Jharkhand on Wednesday.

Bandi Sanjay accuses Congress of betraying BCs while favouring Muslims

Hyderabad, Aug 6 (UNI) : Union Minister of State for Home Affairs Bandi Sanjay Kumar today accused the Congress party of deceiving Backward Classes (BCs) in Telangana, while favouring Muslims through its reservation policies.

Bandi Sanjay Kumar accusations come at a time when Telangana Chief Minister Revanth Reddy is leading a Congress protest at Jantar Mantar in New Delhi demanding the passage of bills ensuring 42 per cent reservations for Backward Classes in local body elections, education and employment sectors.

In a video statement, the BJP leader alleged that the Congress’ dharna at Jantar Mantar in New Delhi was aimed at pushing for “100 per cent reservation for Muslims” rather than safeguarding BC interests. He said the party had violated its own Kamareddy Declaration and was prioritising a so-called “Muslim Declaration” to secure minority votes.

Bandi Sanjay claimed that under the guise of a 42 per cent BC quota, Congress plans to allocate 10 per cent to Muslims and only 32 per cent to BCs, which effectively leaves just 5 per cent additional benefit for BCs over the existing 27 per cent provided by the Modi government.

“Congress is cheating the BCs while conspiring to make Hindus a minority in Telangana. Ambedkar opposed religious reservations, and we will block any such unconstitutional move,” he asserted, warning that “this poisonous tree of Muslim reservations” could spread across the country if not stopped.

He criticised Congress for its historical neglect of BCs, questioning why the party never made a person from the Backward Classes either the Prime Minister or Chief Minister of a state despite being in power for decades.

Drawing a comparison with the Bharatiya Janata Party (BJP), the minister said the BJP has elevated the ranks of BCs by assigning them top positions, including the inclusion of 27 BC leaders in the Union Cabinet, and appointment of a person from BC as the Prime Minister for three consecutive terms.

Bandi Sanjay also targeted Telangana Chief Minister, A Revanth Reddy, asking him why no BC leader was given prominence in either the state cabinet or parliamentary nominations.

The minister also warned that soon BCs and weaker sections would turn against Congress, as they have done in Uttar Pradesh, Bihar, Bengal, and Tamil Nadu. “Congress is shedding crocodile tears for BCs. The day is not far when the BC community and the Hindu society will teach it a fitting lesson,” he said.

Narasimha Charyulu offered floral tributes to his portrait at the Assembly premises.

Speaking on the occasion, the Speaker said Acharya Jayashankar dedicated his entire life to the cause of a separate Telangana state.Chief Minister A Revanth Reddy, in his message, hailed Professor Jayashankar as a great visionary who devoted his life to the ideology of self-determination for Telangana. “Telangana was his breath, focus and goal. He ignited the spirit of the movement in the hearts of people and explained with facts and figures how the region and its people were neglected in united Andhra Pradesh,” he said.

The Chief Minister reiterated that the Congress government is committed to upholding Jayashankar’s vision and working to fulfill his dream for Telangana.

In a statement, TPCC

President and MLC Mahesh Kumar Goud also paid homage, recalling Jayashankar’s pivotal role in the statehood struggle. “The tireless efforts made by Professor Jayashankar for achieving Telangana statehood will remain forever in history. He, who breathed and lived for Telangana, ignited the spirit of the movement among the people,” he said.Mahesh Kumar Goud added that the ideals and ideologies of Professor Jayashankar would serve as a guiding force for the Congress government in carrying forward the spirit of the Telangana movement.

Delhi protest a political drama to mislead BCs: Ramchander Rao

Hyderabad, Aug 6 (UNI) : BJP President N. Ramchander Rao on Wednesday lashed out at the Congress party, terming its Delhi protests over 42 per cent BC reservations as a “political drama” aimed at deceiving the Backward Classes in the state.

Addressing the media at Ramagundam, Rao said the “drama” was being staged under the direction of Rahul Gandhi, with other Congress leaders merely acting as participants.

He alleged that if the Revanth Reddy-led government grants 10 per cent reservations to Muslims, BC quotas would effectively be reduced to 32 per cent.

Rao recalled that the Congress party itself had made the Kamareddy BC Declaration and introduced a BC reservation bill in the state assembly. “Why is the Congress government unable to implement its own promise in Telangana?” he questioned. He also reminded that Karnataka Chief Minister Siddaramaiah was part of the Kamareddy meeting and suggested that Revanth Reddy should first seek clarity on BC reservations in Karnataka before resorting to Delhi protests.The BJP leader further alleged that the Congress government is trying to shift blame onto the Centre while failing to implement the 42 per cent BC quota. He pointed out that the assembly bill did not mention Muslim reservations, and that BJP’s eight MLAs had supported it unconditionally.

Rao also accused the Congress and BRS of following an appeasement policy, recalling that the previous Rajasekhar Reddy government granted 4 per cent reservations to Muslims in education and jobs, a matter still pending in court.He claimed that political concessions led to Muslims winning 35 out of 50 seats in the GHMC elections, sidelining genuine BC leaders.

US tariffs on seafood to affect Indian fisheries sector

The United States’ reciprocal tariffs on seafood trade are placing Indian fishers in increasingly vulnerable economic positions, according to experts at a two-day national seminar on 'Mitigating Climate Change Impact on Marine Ecosystems.'

The seminar, jointly organised here by the ICAR–Central Marine Fisheries Research Institute (CMFRI) and the Institute of Social Sciences, New Delhi, is sponsored by the Indian Council of Social Science Research, New Delhi.

It also highlighted the urgent need for a proper action plan for climate change mitigation and ecosystem restoration.

Marine scientists, citing shifts in species biology, distribution, and environmental conditions, warned that climate change is significantly transforming marine ecosystems and fisheries in India.

Dr. K. R. Sreenath, Director of the Fishery Survey of India, who inaugurated the seminar yesterday, said the effects of climate change are evident in the coral reef bleaching in Lakshadweep, which poses a serious threat to biodiversity and coastal protection.

He stressed the urgent need for accurate prediction models for weather events and fish species distribution and abundance, which are essential for sustainable fisheries planning and disaster risk reduction.

Dr. K. Mohammed Koya, Fisheries Development Commissioner, Government of India, said climate change has drastically altered the Lakshadweep ecosystem, significantly impacting fisheries.

He noted that seagrass beds have been damaged and stressed the importance of effective restoration.

Introducing seaweed farming in the lagoons, he suggested, could attract rare species and benefit local fishing.

The central government’s carbon market system could also incentivise fishermen and fish farmers to adopt such restorative practices.

Prof. Vinod Sharma, Climate Change Advisor to the Government of Sikkim, said coastal shorelines have been changing more rapidly since 2000 due to climate-related events.

“The Arabian Sea has seen a recent increase in the frequency of cyclones. This has led to greater saltwater intrusion in vulnerable coastal areas, seriously impacting the health of local communities,” he added.

Dr. Surajit Mahalanobis, Senior Research Fellow at the ISS, presented an overview of the seminar. Dr. Shoba Joe Kizhakudan and Dr. Pooja Sharma also spoke at the inauguration.

A wide range of topics — including adaptive management strategies, socio-economic resilience, nature-based solutions, innovation, and emerging technologies — are being discussed at the seminar, which will conclude on Wednesday.

CMFRI Director Dr. Grinson George said a key concern is the change in fish phenology — or life cycle patterns — where commercially important species are now maturing at smaller sizes. “Silver pomfret now matures at 280 g, down from 410 g. Similar reductions in size and fecundity are being seen in coastal prawns, sardines, and mackerels, affecting reproductive success and recruitment into fisheries,” he said.

On shifts in fish stock geography, he highlighted the northward migration of species such as the Indian oil sardine, a trend predicted under future climate scenarios driven by changes in food availability, rainfall, oceanic upwelling, and oxygen levels. According to him, fishermen lose a considerable number of fishing days each year due to cyclone warnings and other extreme weather events. He emphasised that a community-oriented approach must be integral to policy-making to ensure local support and the long-term success of conservation and adaptation efforts.

Study Finds Diet Soda May Triple Risk of Stroke and Alzheimer’s

Frequent Diet Soda Intake May Harm Brain and Increase Stroke Risk

(Standard Post Bureau)

In today’s health-conscious world, diet sodas have long been marketed as a guilt-free alternative to their sugary counterparts, offering the same taste without the added calories. However, recent evidence suggests that what many perceive as a “healthier” option may in fact be doing more harm than good—particularly to our brains.

A study published in the American Heart Association’s leading journal Stroke has raised serious concerns about the long-term neurological effects of consuming diet sodas. The research followed over 2,800 adults aged 45 and above for a decade and found that those who consumed one or more artificially sweetened beverages daily had a nearly threefold increased risk of developing both ischemic stroke and Alzheimer’s dementia. The hazard ratio for ischemic stroke was 2.96 and for Alzheimer’s was 2.89—staggeringly high figures that demand attention and caution.

To put these numbers into perspective, a hazard ratio (HR) of 1.0 implies no difference in risk between two groups. An HR of 2.0 means there is a 100% increase in risk, and an HR nearing 3.0, as found in this study, is significant enough to raise alarms across the medical community. In simpler terms, individuals consuming diet sodas daily are nearly three times more likely to suffer a stroke or develop Alzheimer’s than those who do not. Artificial sweeteners—like aspartame, sucralose, and saccharin—are the common ingredients in diet sodas. While these substances are calorie-free, they are not metabolically inert. Multiple studies have suggested that artificial sweeteners may disrupt gut microbiota, alter insulin sensitivity, and impact vascular health. But when it comes to brain function, these sweeteners may have more insidious effects. The vascular system plays a crucial role in maintaining brain health. Any compromise in blood vessels—such as those caused by chronic inflammation or endothelial dysfunction—can lead to reduced cerebral blood flow. This is the key driver of ischemic strokes, where parts of the brain are deprived of oxygen due to blocked arteries. Similarly, chronic vascular insufficiency and inflammation have been strongly linked with neurodegenerative diseases such as Alzheimer’s. Another hypothesis is that the artificial sweetness tricks the brain into craving more sugar and processed food, indirectly leading to metabolic syndrome—a known risk factor for stroke and cognitive decline. Moreover, repeated exposure to non-nutritive sweeteners may interfere with learning and memory by altering neurotransmitter pathways, although more research is needed in this area. From a neurologist’s point of view, this study should be a wake-up call. Stroke is already one of the leading causes of disability and death worldwide, and Alzheimer’s disease continues to be an escalating public health crisis with no definitive cure. If a simple lifestyle habit like switching to artificially sweetened beverages can dramatically increase these risks, then it is imperative we reconsider our dietary choices.

The findings also highlight the need for better public education and food labeling. Most people believe they are making a healthier choice when they pick up a can of diet soda instead of regular cola. This perception is reinforced by aggressive marketing campaigns that focus solely on weight loss and calorie count, often ignoring the broader metabolic and neurological consequences. As a medical professional, I advise my patients to adopt a cautious and informed approach to their diet. Water, fresh fruit juices, herbal teas, or even sparkling water with a dash of lemon are safer and healthier alternatives to diet sodas. Moderation is key—occasional indulgence may not be harmful, but habitual consumption, as this study shows, could be a recipe for long-term neurological damage.

Goa Sets Gold Standard in Waste Management with Tech, Community and Green Ambition

(Standard Post Bureau)

When one thinks of Goa, it's usually the golden beaches, easy going life, and vibrant culture that come to mind. But over the past few years, Goa is transforming into one of India’s cleanest and most efficient states when it comes to managing waste.

In just under a decade, the state has built an impressive portfolio of infrastructure dedicated to waste management. The Saligao Integrated Solid Waste Management Facility, which began with a modest 100 TPD (tonnes per day) capacity, now operates at 250 TPD and that too sustainably. Meanwhile, the newly inaugurated Cacora facility in South Goa, flagged off by Prime Minister Narendra Modi in February 2024, is capable of treating 100 TPD and generates 8,000 cubic meters of biogas daily, converted into clean electricity.

Panaji Leads with People

Waste management isn’t just about machines and megawatts, it’s about mindset. And in Goa’s capital, Panaji, the “Bin Free Campaign” is a shining example. With over 120 housing colonies now composting wet waste and sending 2,464 tonnes of non-recyclables to cement kilns, the city is redefining urban civic responsibility. Even more ambitious is the 16-way dry waste segregation system, being scaled up to 28 categories, making Panaji one of India’s most advanced municipal models in waste classification.

Why This Matters

At a time when many states are still struggling with basic collection and segregation, Goa is pioneering circular economy principles, integrating community engagement with tech-led waste infrastructure. It’s a model that’s not just scalable but inspirational and especially for coastal states facing mounting environmental pressures.

And the journey isn’t stopping here. To further boost citizen participation and drive responsible disposal, the Goa government is preparing to launch a Deposit Refund Scheme (DRS), a first state level DRS in India.

UP CM slams previous govts, says appeasement politicians now nowhere

Moradabad, Aug 6 (UNI): Inaugurating the Atal Residential School in Moradabad, constructed at a cost of Rs 79 crore, Uttar Pradesh Chief Minister Yogi Adityanath today launched a scathing attack on the opposition. He remarked that those who once came to power through appeasement politics now find themselves politically irrelevant — neither connected to society nor concerned about future generations.

Lashing out at the Samajwadi Party, Yogi Adityanath questioned its leaders’ recent talk of “PDA”, citing their poor track record in the education sector.

He recalled that during the Kalyan Singh’s government, when students were taught G for Ganesh, SP leaders objected and demanded it be changed to G for Goofball.

“This reflects their mindset,” said CM Yogi, adding that while the BJP seeks to instil Indian culture and values in children, SP leaders had no qualms about insulting revered deities like Lord Ganesh.

Highlighting the poor state of education under previous regimes, Yogi said, "There were neither timely recruitments of teachers nor any serious efforts to improve educational standards. The entire administrative and academic ecosystem was crippled by nepotism and caste-based politics."

Criminal elements operated with impunity in almost every district, dragging the state into an era of anarchy and communal unrest. “For them, mass cheating was a right, not a crime. They gambled with the future of our youth through systematic exam fraud,” he added.

CM Yogi emphasised that the BJP’s welfare schemes are rooted not in appeasement but in genuine public satisfaction, ensuring benefits reach every citizen without bias or discrimination. Criticising past governments, he said, "Power was once treated as a platform for appeasement, turning education into a hub of cheating, chaos, and caste politics." "Today, those same people are suddenly concerned about public satisfaction," he said. "Our government doesn’t indulge in appeasement — it works for the holistic welfare of all. That’s why the public continues to trust the BJP."

Extending festive greetings for Raksha Bandhan, Shri Krishna Janmashtami, and Independence Day, the Chief Minister also announced free travel for all women in state-run buses on August 8, 9, and 10.

Dedicating the new school to the children of labourer families in the Moradabad division, Yogi described it as an ideal "temple of education" established in the memory of former Prime Minister Atal Bihari Vajpayee, during his birth centenary year.

He said the school is not only an educational institution but also a centre to instil cultural values, discipline and self-reliance in the younger generation.

Highlighting Prime Minister Narendra Modi’s directive for the effective use of the BOC fund, the CM said that, unlike previous governments where this fund was misused for corruption and distribution, it is now being directed towards the education of workers’ children.

He said today’s Uttar Pradesh is not only scaling new heights of development but also taking pride in its cultural heritage and educational progress.

Tirthankar Poddar, better known by his stage name 2Blue entered the Mumbai Indi rock circuit back in 2000. And ever since then, he has had always made his way of mesmerising the audience with his awe-inspiring performances. In a candid conversation, the light-hearted conversationalist, 2Blue talks about his journey from MBA to Zedde, his idea of success and his upcoming performance at Hard Rock Cafe.

2Blue sounds to be a very unusual name. What's the story behind it?

Unusual name? You could get into trouble for saying that in Kolkata (laughs). You know, the legendary RD Burman, his nickname was Tublu too. Just that he was more conventional with the spelling.

Vayu to Zedde must have been quite a journey. Please comment.

When you are the lead singer of a band, it becomes a huge part of your life. With Vayu, I stood 10 feet tall at practically every significant music festival in the country between 2003 and 2008. With Zedde, we won awards, made it to all popular TV and radio shows and also made some great friends along the way. Hindsight is very important for me. It reminds me of where I come from and helps me not lose my gratitude.

One of Zedde's hit numbers 'Mumbai' is believed to be the story of your life. Please elaborate.

True! The song is quite auto-biographical. It speaks of a small-town boy who comes to the city on a train carrying just a bag full of dreams. The city takes him under her wings, nurses his wounds, washes him clean and he falls in love with her instantly. The song won the Asian Anthem of the Year title at AVIMA 2010 and also propelled us to the top at the ArtistAloud Awards the very same year. You see, these miracles wouldn't have happened if I wasn't filled with love and gratitude for the place I now call home.

How has life changed for you since you took up music over MBA?

Knowledge is never a waste. Business school honed my business sense, something I use in dealing with event organisers now. As Steve Jobs said, the dots eventually align.

What attracted you to rock music?

The same thing that attracts a fish to the water and a bird to the sky.

Any bands or musicians you seek inspiration from?

I seek inspiration from bands and musicians who break the mould to make the mould, artists who are not scared to be weird and eccentric. The names are countless but, mostly, from the halcyon days of classic rock and some even from our very own indie circle.

It wouldn't be wrong to say that the music scenario in India is still developing. Do you believe that budding musicians lack the right kind of marketing and promotion?

Yes and no. Yes, because the big labels are yet focusing only on either iconic acts or fresh talent with blatant disregard for the artistic middleclass and no, because it is now the artiste's market. You don't need a big label to promote your music if you are smart and if your music is good. DIY (Do It Yourself) is the way to go. In more ways than one, the independent music circle is now the fertile breeding ground for self-respecting artistes.

Any upcoming projects in line?

I'm taking my Bollywood band very seriously. Also, we play a monthly show at Hard Rock Café Andheri, the next show being on Friday, September 18.

How would you rate the Mumbai crowd?

In general, the Mumbai audiences are now a lot more aware and informed. It's always a thrill to play in Mumbai. They appreciate good music for what it is; whether it is something that you created or not.

What should the audience be expecting at Hard Rock Cafe on September 18?

Madness... served with a thick sticky coating of love. A lot of west-meets-east kind of moments.

A piece of advice for budding musicians and singers.

Your heart will never let you down. Do what your heart says.

Wash this way...

Here is the list of the things that you should not put into dishwasher, remember to just hand wash them

Dishwashers were a blessing when they started popping up in homes in the 1950s. Finally! A quick way to tackle a big batch of dirty dishes. But as much as we love them, they're not a cure-all and some items need a good ol' fashioned hand-washing. Here's what the cleaning pros for that will help you to keep far away from the rinse cycle:

A cast-iron skillet

You know how you have to season your skillet before using it? Well, when you put it in the dishwasher, you're basically undoing all of that hard work. Instead, rinse it in warm water or rub it clean with salt.

Any wooden utensils

The hot water and heat for drying is too harsh for your mixing spoons, spatulas, or any other tool with wood on it. The material may warp and lose its shape making them no good for stirring.

Your wooden cutting boards

Like the wooden spoons, hot water will cause the finish of your favorite wooden board to dull and possibly warp. Instead, use a mixture of 3/4 cup chlorine bleach and 1 gallon of water to scrub it clean.

Your Grandma's Vintage Plates

If you were gifted the family china when you got married, be wary of exposing it to the hot water and detergents that can eat away at any gold trim or hand-painted details.

Your garlic press

They speed up supper, but you'll need to slow down to clean them. Since garlic is sticky in paste form, bits of it get stuck in the crevices. Wash yours by hand to ensure it's totally spotless for your next meal prep session.

An insulated mug

Some newer travel mugs are dishwasher safe, but for others, your dishwasher will destroy the insulating materials after water gets trapped between the layers.

Bottles with labels still on

If you want to keep your jam jar, just make sure you remove the paper label and any adhesive remnants first - those materials usually come off in the dishwasher and can get stuck in the filter, which might lead to more serious problems later.

Any aluminum cookware

According to Franke, any cookware that is made of aluminum will discolor your dishwasher. This goes for the disposable stuff, too.

Your cheese grater

The cheesy goodness you just sprinkled on top of your tacos might still be stuck in the holes even after a cycle in dishwasher. Instead, use soap and a sponge to wash it by hand and ensure today's cheddar doesn't mix with tomorrow's mozzarella.

Your fancy chef knives

Since the hard plastic in your dishwasher shouldn't be nicked, you should keep your knives far away from it, Forte says. But if your dishwasher has a rack for knives, you're the exception to the rule.

Copper pots, pans and mugs

If you enjoy a tasty Moscow Mule in a copper mug as much as we do, you know half of the appeal is your cup's beautiful color. But according to Franke, the harshness of the dishwasher can cause any copper surfaces to dull.

Cookware with burnt-on stains

So you let the potatoes sit in the oven for a little too long and now you have dark, stubborn crust on your glass baking dish. Since it'll take some serious elbow grease to tackle it, the dishwasher won't cut it.

Your Crystal

Keep your punch bowl and glasses far, far away: The high water temperature may leave your crystal chipped, cracked, or dull.

Watch your language!

In the battle of LOL and haha, usage of emojis and text messaging vocabulary defines your age

Maybe you send a seemingly innocent text, and throw a hehe, haha, or LOL in for good measure. Or perhaps, instead of sending a :), you're tossing in five emoji. Better yet, you're sending bitmojis.

All of these things just might give away how old you are - or at least what decade you grew up in. Check out the most popular things to add on to your texts with friends, and see if what you choose is revealing your age.

Your show of laughter

If you use ... LOL
You grew up in the 80s. Or at least, Facebook says you did. According to Quartz, the social media giant analyzed comments on posts that incited laughter, and found that less than 5 percent of people are using the seemingly outdated LOL. Those in their 30s, as opposed to 20s. Sure, Facebook isn't exactly the same as texts, but since you're likely still sending those LOLs on your phone, we're going to say close enough.

If you use ... Haha
Oh hey, 90s child. Sure, you were around when LOL hit it big, but that fire quickly burnt out. You'd rather show people you're laughing by actually typing out the sound you would make. So we won't be surprised if you toss in a hehe every now and then.

If you use ... :)
Again, we're gonna guess you were born in the '80s. That's because you were around before the beloved emoji keyboard, so you had to work with what little entertainment your tiny little keyboard remember the enV3? could provide. Sure, you're not afraid to toss in a few emoji here and there especially those raise the roof hands but as far as you're concerned, there's nothing wrong with a classic colon and right-side parentheses.

If you use ... Bitmojis
Emoji just don't express enough for you. You need a full-on avatar with a wide array of phrases to choose from, because you're a complex individual. Which makes sense if you grew up in the 90s because sometimes the thought of never using another Bonne Bell Lip Smacker is just too much to bear, and a simple ?? will never be able to communicate that accurately.

If you use ... heyyyy or niiiiie
It's not quite the same as a text, but researchers analyzed stylistic ties between younger and older tweeters to see how their language use differed. The younger peeps were more likely to use ALL CAPS and alphabetical lengthening that's fancy speak for adding more letters to the word. And since you seem to be more open-minded, I'm going to assume you're more likely to make up words. Making you the reason for butthurt and awesomesauce being officially entered into Oxford Dictionaries. Take that as you will.

If you use ... hey or nice
Basically, if you're older, you like to write words the proper way. Not only did those same researchers find that you don't use alphabetical lengthening all that much, but you also use more prepositions like for, to, and under. Don't ask me how people are getting away with not using them to complete comprehensible sentences, but apparently it's a thing. Just roll with it.

*While some of these results have been backed up by research, others are the creation of the inner workings of my super-fun brain and conversations with my co-workers. So don't forget to LOL ... or haha ... or hehe.

FRY TALE

Your breakfast is counting on the perfect fried eggs. Here is how Perfection is overrated, except in the case of fried eggs. On their own, they make a tasty breakfast in less than five minutes. Beyond mornings, they have the ability to elevate those sad leftovers into a meal of greatness. Got leftover rice, veggies, or pasta? Put an egg on it. Here's how to make them perfect every time.

► Prepare your pan

First, heat one tablespoon of neutral oil like canola into a non-stick skillet on medium until its shimmering, but not smoking. You'll know it's shimmering when the oil starts to glisten and easily coats the surface of the pan.

► Then, prepare your eggs

Meanwhile, carefully crack each egg into a small bowl, making sure to keep the yolk in tact.

► Start cooking

When the oil is ready, gently pour two eggs into the skillet and cook uncovered for one minute. If you like some browning on the bottom and edges of the white, use a higher heat, being careful not burn it before the top has cooked through.

► Cover the pan for one minute

Put a lid on the pan and cook the egg until the white is set and the yolk is done to your liking. For a runnier egg, stop cooking when the white has just set and the yolk is still bright yellow.

► Quickly remove from the pan

Every second matters with eggs, so have a plate ready and remove the eggs from the heat as soon as they are done. Season them with salt and pepper and serve them immediately.

Are you a phubber?

Constant checking of phone while talking to partner causes the other one to ignore

Do you constantly keep checking your phone while talking to your partner, even while out on a romantic date? If yes, you are guilty of p-phubbing.

Phubbing is the act of snubbing someone in a social setting by looking at your phone and p-phubbing relates specifically to when you ignore a partner while doing so.

Researchers have now found that p-phubbing can cause the person being ignored to become depressed and anxious in their relationship, and it can even impact other aspects of their life.

The term phubbing was coined in 2013 and is a portmanteau of the words phone and snubbing, the additional p stands for partner and was added by researchers from Baylor University.

Led by business professor James Roberts, a team from Baylor University in Texas surveyed 145 men and women in relationships.

Each participant was presented with a series of statements and was asked to rate them on a scale of how often they experienced them.

The statements included, "My partner glances at his/her phone when talking to me", "My partner uses his or her phone when we are out together", and "during a typical mealtime that my partner and I spend together, my partner pulls out and checks his/her phone".

They were also asked to explain how this made them feel.

The results found that p-phubbing had a direct impact on relationship satisfaction across the board.

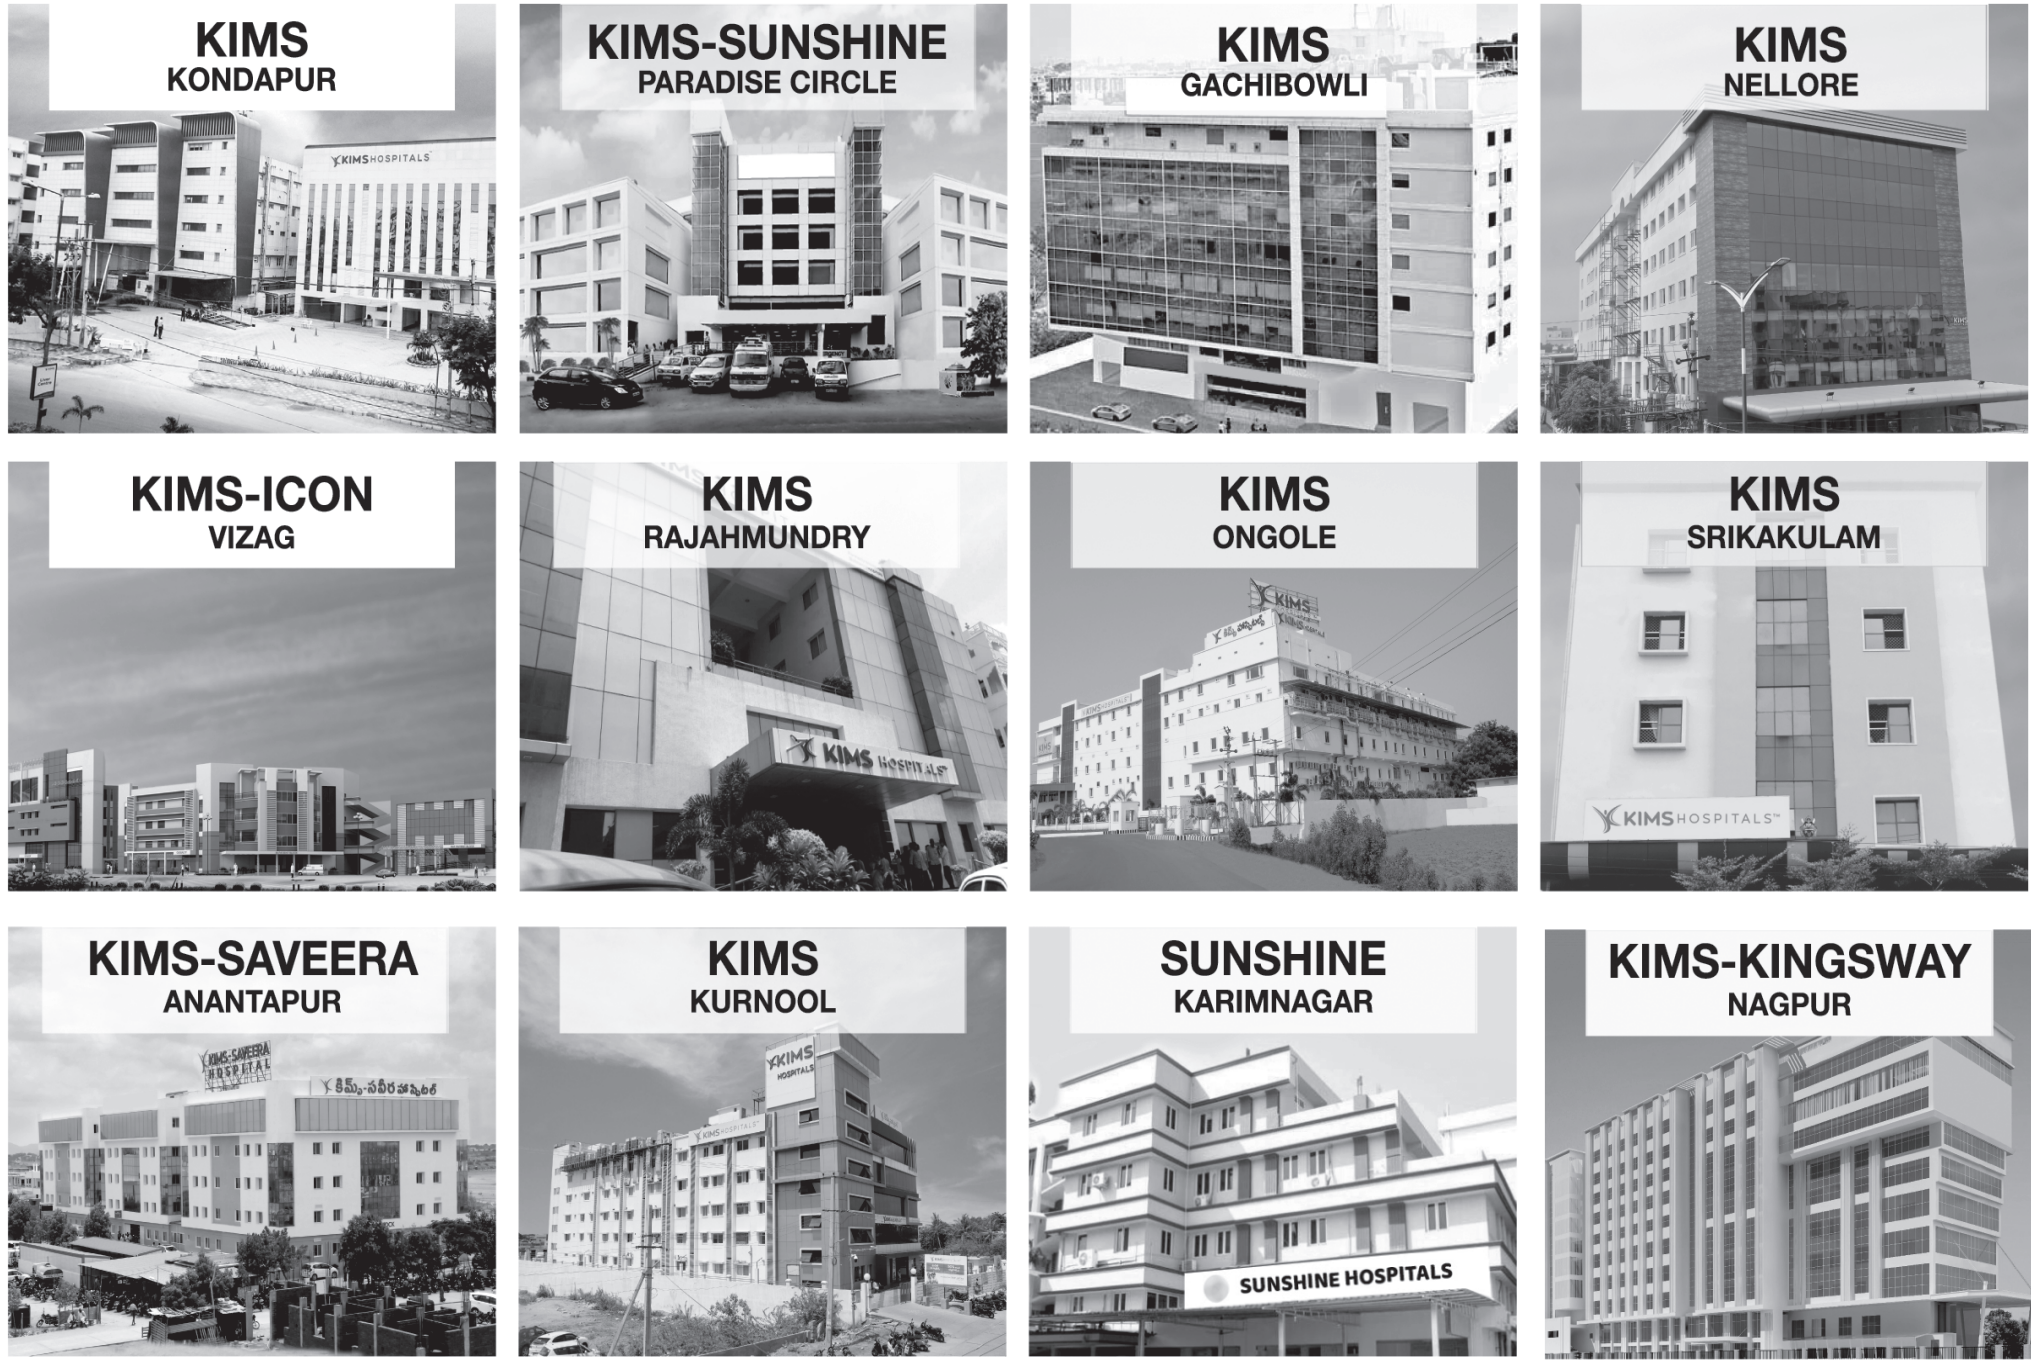

This was intensified if the person being ignored had what's known as an anxious attachment style.

India has fielded a strong contingent of 40 boxers — 20 in each age group — with a perfect mix of proven champions and potential talents who have impressed in the domestic circuit.

Among the four other semi-finalists in the morning session, Rocky Chaudhary was unlucky as the referee did not allow him to continue in the second round as he suffered cuts over both his eyebrows against Iran’s Sam Estaki.

Harsh (60kg) and Mayur (90kg) took the fight to their respective opponents but could not finish on the right side of the split verdict from the judges. Harsh went down 1:4 against Uzbekistan’s Shohruh Abdulalikov while Mayur lost to Shakhzod Polvonov of the same country. Ankush, the other boxer in fray, went down 0:5 against Sanzhar-Ali Begaliyev of Kazakhstan. All the four boxers will bring home a bronze medal.

In the evening session, Bhawna Sharma could not rekindle her quarterfinal form and went down 1:4 against Robiyakhon Bakhtiyorova of Uzbekistan in the women’s 48kg weight category. Also finishing with the bronze medals were Parthavi Grewal (women’s 60kg), Parnjal Yadav (women’s 65kg) and Shruti (women’s 75kg) after they lost their respective semi-final bouts.

Mohammedan SC aim for strong finish after early exit

Kolkata, Aug 6 (UNI) Indian Super League (ISL) side Mohammedan Sporting Club will look to bow out of the Durand Cup with pride as they take on the Border Security Force Football Team in their final Group B fixture at the Kishore Bharati Krirangan here tomorrow. The Kolkata side are already out of contention for the knockout stages, having suffered defeats to Mohun Bagan Super Giant and Diamond Harbour FC. Both those sides have won their opening two matches having secured six points each. Their opponents BSF Football Team find themselves in a similar position, also having lost both games to MBSG and Diamond Harbour FC. Thursday’s clash then becomes a battle to end the campaign on a high note.

It’s been a tough outing for Mohammedan SC, a youthful side that has shown promise in patches but lacked the experience to see out results. In their opening match against Diamond Harbour FC, they went ahead but eventually fell to a 2-1 defeat after conceding twice in the second half. In the much-anticipated Kolkata Derby, Mohammedan SC held their own against a strong MBSG side and managed to equalise but were eventually overpowered in a 3-1 loss. Despite the setbacks, there have been encouraging signs for the Kolkata-based outfit.

Indonesia hold India at bay in AFC U20 Women’s Asian Cup Qualifiers opener

Yangon (Myanmar), Aug 6 (UNI) : The India U20 Women’s Team were held to a goalless draw by Indonesia at the Thuwunna Stadium today, in their opening Group D encounter of the AFC U20 Women’s Asian Cup 2026 Qualifiers. The Young Tigresses have one point in the group, which is currently topped by hosts Myanmar, who defeated Turkmenistan 6-1 at the same venue, earlier in the day. An intense midfield battle began right from the kick-off, as both sides looked to assert their dominance. India managed to settle into the game early on, as they were able to pass it around in the opposition half, often creating chances down the wings. Neha’s sixth-minute cross from the left wing deceived the Indonesian defence, leaving Pooja and Sulanjana Raul on the chase at the far post. A simple touch could have posed serious questions to Indonesia goalkeeper Alleana Ayu Arumy, but the ball eluded everyone.

As the clock ticked past the half-hour mark, Sulanjana and Pooja tried their luck from long range. While the former’s effort missed the target by inches, the latter saw her shot fly straight into Alleana’s hands.

Neha looked lively down the left flank after the change of ends, but the Indonesia defenders worked in unison to isolate the former and gain possession of the ball.

With a little over 20 minutes left, India began to press high in order to induce some panic among the Indonesia defence. Sibani Devi Nongmeikapam intercepted a pass in the attacking third and cut it back for substitute Babita Kumari, who had replaced Neha. The latter, however, was unable to get a touch on the ball. Minutes later, Sibani looked to find Babita again with a cross from the left, but Alleana collected it calmly. Indonesia’s only notable chance of the match came in the 87th minute, when substitute Ajeng Sri Handayani bounded past the India defence and attempted to place the ball at the far post. India goalkeeper Monalisha Devi Moirangthem, however, got down low to make a save before Thoibisana Chanu Toijam cleared.

India had two good chances in injury time, both off free-kicks by Anju Chanu Kayenpaibam, one from each flank. While both the free-kicks were on target, the Indonesia goalkeeper managed to palm them away.

The Young Tigresses will square off against Turkmenistan in their second match at the Thuwunna Stadium in Yangon on August 8, at 18:00 IST, in Group D of the Qualifiers.

India U20 Women: Monalisha Devi Moirangthem (GK), Remi Thokchom, Thoibisana Chanu Toijam, Arina Devi Nameirakpam (Bhumika Devi Khumukcham 67’), Neha (Babita Kumari 67’), Pooja (Deepika Pal 90+3’), Sibani Devi Nongmeikapam, Shubhangi Singh (C), Anju Chanu Kayenpaibam, Cindy Remruatpuii Colney, Sulanjana Raul (Monisha Singha 84’).

West Indies eye World Cup push from Pakistan ODI series

Trinidad, Aug 6 (UNI): West Indies have unveiled a 15-member squad for the ODI series against Pakistan for the three-match tournament set to be played here on August 8.

Led by Shai Hope, the squad featuring multiple young faces that the Windies have relied on in recent times, has been bolstered by the return of dynamic all-rounder Romario Shepherd. Shepherd makes his comeback to the West Indies ODI side since the series against Bangladesh last year.

Meanwhile, 18-year-old wicket-keeper-batter Jewel Andrew, who made his ODI debut against Sri Lanka last year, has kept his place from the team that featured in the ODI series in England earlier this summer.

Left-arm pacer Jediah Blades, who earned his first cap against Bangladesh in 2024, earns a recall.

Amir Jangoo, who scored a memorable ton on his ODI debut against the Tigers last year, also retains his spot, having featured against Ireland back in May. West Indies are coming into the series on the back of a 2-1 T20I series loss at home.

Head coach Daren Sammy believes the series presents an opportunity to strengthen their case for a spot at the ICC Men’s Cricket World Cup in 2027, an ICC report said.

“Pakistan presents a different test and challenge as we continue our push for automatic qualification for the 2027 World Cup,” Sammy said.

“While qualifying is our immediate goal, maintaining a winning mentality and team cohesion is essential for long-term success.

IGPL will be launchpad for future generations: Gaganjeet Singh Bhullar

New Delh, Aug 6 (UNI) : Gaganjeet Singh Bhullar, the veteran Indian golfer, has signed on with the Indian Golf Premier League (IGPL) as an Icon player, and will be leading one of the six franchises in the highly-anticipated tournament. The Arjuna Awardee, during a media briefing, expressed his excitement, describing IGPL as one of the most exciting golf ventures in many years, and explained the reasons behind his participation.

“Golf is an individual sport. But whenever I have had the opportunity to represent my country, I have really enjoyed playing as a team,” Bhullar, who was part of India’s silver medal-winning team at the 2006 Asian Games in Doha, said.

“When I heard the news regarding a golf league, I knew it was exactly what I was looking forward for. Because we do not often get to play as a team. I think that was one part which was missing and I was really looking forward to do that,” the 37-year-old said.

IGPL will be hosting India’s first-ever professional league tour to feature both men and women playing on the same platform, competing across franchise teams and regional circuits. The integrated format not only redefines how golf is played in India but also reflects their commitment to promote inclusive excellence and athlete empowerment.

From having the Indian cricket legend and golf enthusiast Yuvraj Singh as a co-owner and the brand ambassador, to signing a Memorandum of Understanding (MoU) with the Indian Golf Union (IGU) — the official governing body for men’s amateur golf in India - the IGPL has already made major moves to establish themselves as a premier league competition for men’s, women’s and amateur golf talent.

Bhullar views the tournament as an opportunity to nurture, groom and spot fresh talent – and is eager to help in this endeavour.

“When I got the opportunity to be a captain of one of the teams, I thought I could mentor the next generation of Indian golfers. I am personally going to really enjoy this aspect. There are other icon stars with the likes of Shiv Kapur, Gaurav Ghei, SSP Chawrasia – who all have been veterans of the sport. This will be really beneficial for the young players to quicken their growth,” he further added.

Further, to create an overall impact on the ecosystem and to funnel rising talent into the league, IGPL tour will be played across different cities in the build-up to the first edition of the league between September and December.

“One of the things that people don’t realise is that golf is a very expensive sport. And for some of the youngsters to get a launchpad like the IGPL at early stages of their careers is immensely helpful. It’s not just a ceremonial league. It’s going to be very competitive and there’s going to be serious prize money to win here,” Bhullar said.

“Hence, for some youngsters to come out and get that opportunity to make money and invest it in themselves, and then to go and play across different tournaments is a big thing. Because golf being an expensive sport, it’s sometimes very difficult to have the resources to invest in your own game at the starting point of your career. I think that’s something that the league will also do,” Bhullar added.

Xi'an International Football Center to host China's AFC U23 Asian Cup qualifiers

XI'AN (China), Aug 6 (UNI) The Xi'an International Football Center in northwest China's Shaanxi Province is set to host its first international matches, beginning with China's group-stage fixtures in the 2026 AFC U23 Asian Cup qualifiers from September 3 to 9.

China will face Australia, Timor-Leste and the Northern Mariana Islands in Group D. The winners of the 11 groups and the four best runner-ups will qualify for the finals in January 2026 in Saudi Arabia.

"Today, we can say with relief that Xi'an International Football Center is all set!" read an open letter released Monday by the stadium's operator, Shaanxi Tourism Group.

Construction on the 60,000-seat venue began in 2020. According to the Chinese Football Association, China will open its qualifying campaign against Timor-Leste on September 3 at the new stadium.

Although the venue has hosted several trial events, local second-tier side Shaanxi Union has yet to announce when it will begin playing its China League One home matches there. Beyond professional football, the stadium is expected to host fitness activities, amateur competitions and concerts.

‘Shooting League of India will be a landmark moment for the sport’

New Delhi, Aug 4 (UNI) : Former world number one and Olympian Ronjan Sodhi is enthusiastically looking forward to the Shooting league of India (SLI) and has described it as a landmark moment for the sport. Sodhi, one of India’s most decorated trap shooters said "The league format is something we have been discussing for a long time. With the kind of depth we now have in Indian shooting, this is the right step forward," Sodhi said. “It’s going to be exciting for the fans, great for the young shooters, and much-needed for the sport.”

"This league has the potential to transform Indian shooting. It’s not just about medals anymore. It’s about building a culture," Sodhi added.

Sodhi feels that apart from being a great platform for young domestic as well as International shooting talent the league will enhance visibility of the sport.

"You can’t love a sport you don’t see. Kids have to see the sport to be inspired. Neeraj Chopra winning gold caused javelins to sell out across the country overnight. That’s the power of visibility," he said. "When international stars and Indian Olympians shoot together in a televised, high-energy league, it becomes a spectacle people will want to follow and join" he added. The Shooting League of India, scheduled to be held between November 20 and December 2, 2025, will feature eight franchise teams in a fast-paced mixed-team format. Events will include 10M and 25M Pistol, 10M and 50M Rifle (3P), and Shotgun (Trap & Skeet). Teams will compete in a two-pool league stage, with player selection strategically tiered into Elite Champions, World Elite, National Champions, and Junior & Youth Champions to create competitive balance.

While praising government support through schemes like Khelo India and the National Centres of Excellence, Sodhi made a strong pitch for corporate involvement. “You can’t expect only the government to fund sport. Shooting has delivered medals consistently—at the Olympics, World Cups, and Asian Games. It is time to give back. Sponsors should see it as a national contribution, not just an investment.”

Sodhi believes the franchise model can create financial sustainability for athletes. “Shooting is a long-term sport- athletes can stay competitive for 20+ years. If we support them early with the right structure, they can build stable careers, just like in cricket or kabaddi.” Shedding light on the psychological side of the sport, Sodhi highlighted the mental resilience shooting demands. “In shooting, you hold a gun-- you cannot show emotions. You cannot kick the turf or break your bat. You have to internalise everything. That’s what makes it the most mentally demanding sport.”

He also advocated for innovative broadcast elements, like cameras capturing facial expressions. “At the 2012 Olympics, they zoomed in on our faces. Viewers could see me talking to myself between shots. That kind of intimacy builds emotional connection with the audience.” While not every registered shooter may get a team spot this season, Sodhi sees the league as a movement that will evolve. “In the beginning, pick your favourite franchise, wear the jersey, cheer for your shooters. That is how fan bases grow. Give it time- it will happen.”

As the Shooting League of India prepares to host top-tier international and Indian athletes, Ronjan Sodhi’s words serve as both a reality check and a rallying cry- for fans, brands, and institutions alike.
